

The A3 Curriculum Overview; information flow in education development

In this assignment, a tool was developed to help in the development of study programmes (curricula). The tool focusses on communication and information flow between the various people involved with the development of these programmes, as most problems (found through interviews) were ultimately related to communication. The A3 Curriculum Overview is based on a similar tool, which was developed to help with information flow in technical engineering projects. The question was whether this original tool, developed for a technical environment, could be adapted for use in an educational environment. Evaluation of the A3 Curriculum Overview showed promising results.